During the 2004 Tsunami and earth quake that devastated Aceh, the foundation was highlighted on the plight of over 140 orphans (between the age of 6 – 18 years old) it temporarily sheltered at a borrowed dormitory room, and another 120 casualties (below 5 years old) at another school it set up in, just outside Banda Aceh using an abandoned building. Many more orphans waited in queue to attend the Fajar Hidayah orphanage-boarding school, then using temporary shelter.

The orphans were cared for by 10 teachers/mentors from Fajar Hidayah Foundation of Jakarta. The pain and destruction around compelled the teachers to persevere in providing care and watch over the orphans' welfare. From the 1st week immediately after the disaster, Fajar Hidayah had sent relief teams to remote villages, refugee camps and barracks. Taking in the living conditions and emotional trauma that relatives of the orphans were in, Fajar Hidayah urged the establishment of a permanent boarding school for the orphans.

At the temporary building the orphans occupied an area of 200 m² on the second floor of one of the school buildings it borrowed. It was within those walls, the orphans played, eat, slept and studied. Despite the cramp quarters, the orphans strived to get back to a live of normalcy without their parents.

A year passed and the orphans had another year to stay at the venue. Meanwhile, the patrons of Fajar Hidayah struggled to find a way to build a permanent boarding school for orphans.

The ultimate goal is to build a self-sufficient complex with training facilities and guests apartments that would allow the Foundation to embark on income-generating activities such as conducted courses & conferences as well as renting out guests apartments. The income generated would be ploughed back for the operational and maintenance costs of the orphanage and school complex.

Just six months before the end of the tenure of the borrowed premises, taking into account the efforts and sustainability program designed by Fajar Hidayah, Singapore International Foundation offered to participate in funding 80% of the planned construction.

In January 2007, the construction of the new complex costing more than SGD 5.000.000 was finally completed with the children occupying their new home. A self sufficient Fajar Hidayah boarding school is now home and school to more than 250 students, and hosting a government program to train more than 50.000 Acehnese teachers.
